

Conflict of Interest Declaration

The “Emergencias Pediátricas” Journal adheres to the Uniform Requirements for Manuscripts Submitted to Biomedical Journals: Writing and Editing for Biomedical Publication¹.

According to the Pediatric Emergencies Journal's article submission agreements, all authors must disclose all affiliations, funding sources, and financial or management relationships that could be perceived as potential sources of bias. All editors, editorial staff, and editorial board members are also required to disclose any potential conflicts of interest.

Authors must disclose the following conflicts of interest, if any, when submitting an article: any paid or unpaid position, consultancy with biomedical companies regardless of whether they appear to be related to the submitted research paper, ownership of stock in any biomedical company, receipt of research support from any non-governmental entity (governmental and private grants must be listed and disclosed as they supported this research project), having first-degree relatives with financial interests in biomedical companies related to this research, receipt of honoraria or speaker fees from any biomedical companies, or any other situation that may create a perceived conflict of interest with your manuscript being published in the Pediatric Emergencies Journal.
